

Gala Event Due Tonight

Hollywood's first world premiere since America's entrance into the war will be given tonight when stars, executives and technicians will attend the opening of Cecil B. De Mille's "Reap the Wild Wind" at the Paramount Hollywood Theater.

The picture will be open to the public for an extended run tomorrow. Part of the proceeds from tonight's premiere will go to the Navy Relief Fund.

Among stars expected to attend tonight are Paulette Goddard, Myrna Loy, Ray Milland, Bob Hope, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Mary Martin, Lynne Overman, Leatrice Joy, Rudy Vallee, Bill Boyd, Veronica Lake, Susan Hayward, Cecil Kellaway, Dorothy Lamour, Anthony Quinn and Ginger Rogers. Leading executives and directors from every studio in town will also be present.

High-ranking Army and Navy officers will add a touch of color to the evening.

Because of wartime restrictions, some of the pomp, ceremony and display of previous years will be lacking. However, the tone of the opening is expected to set a new standard for premieres for the "duration."

"Reap the Wild Wind" stars Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne. Susan Hayward, Raymond Massey, Lynne Overman, Walter Hampden, and others are in the cast.
