

The ANNEX

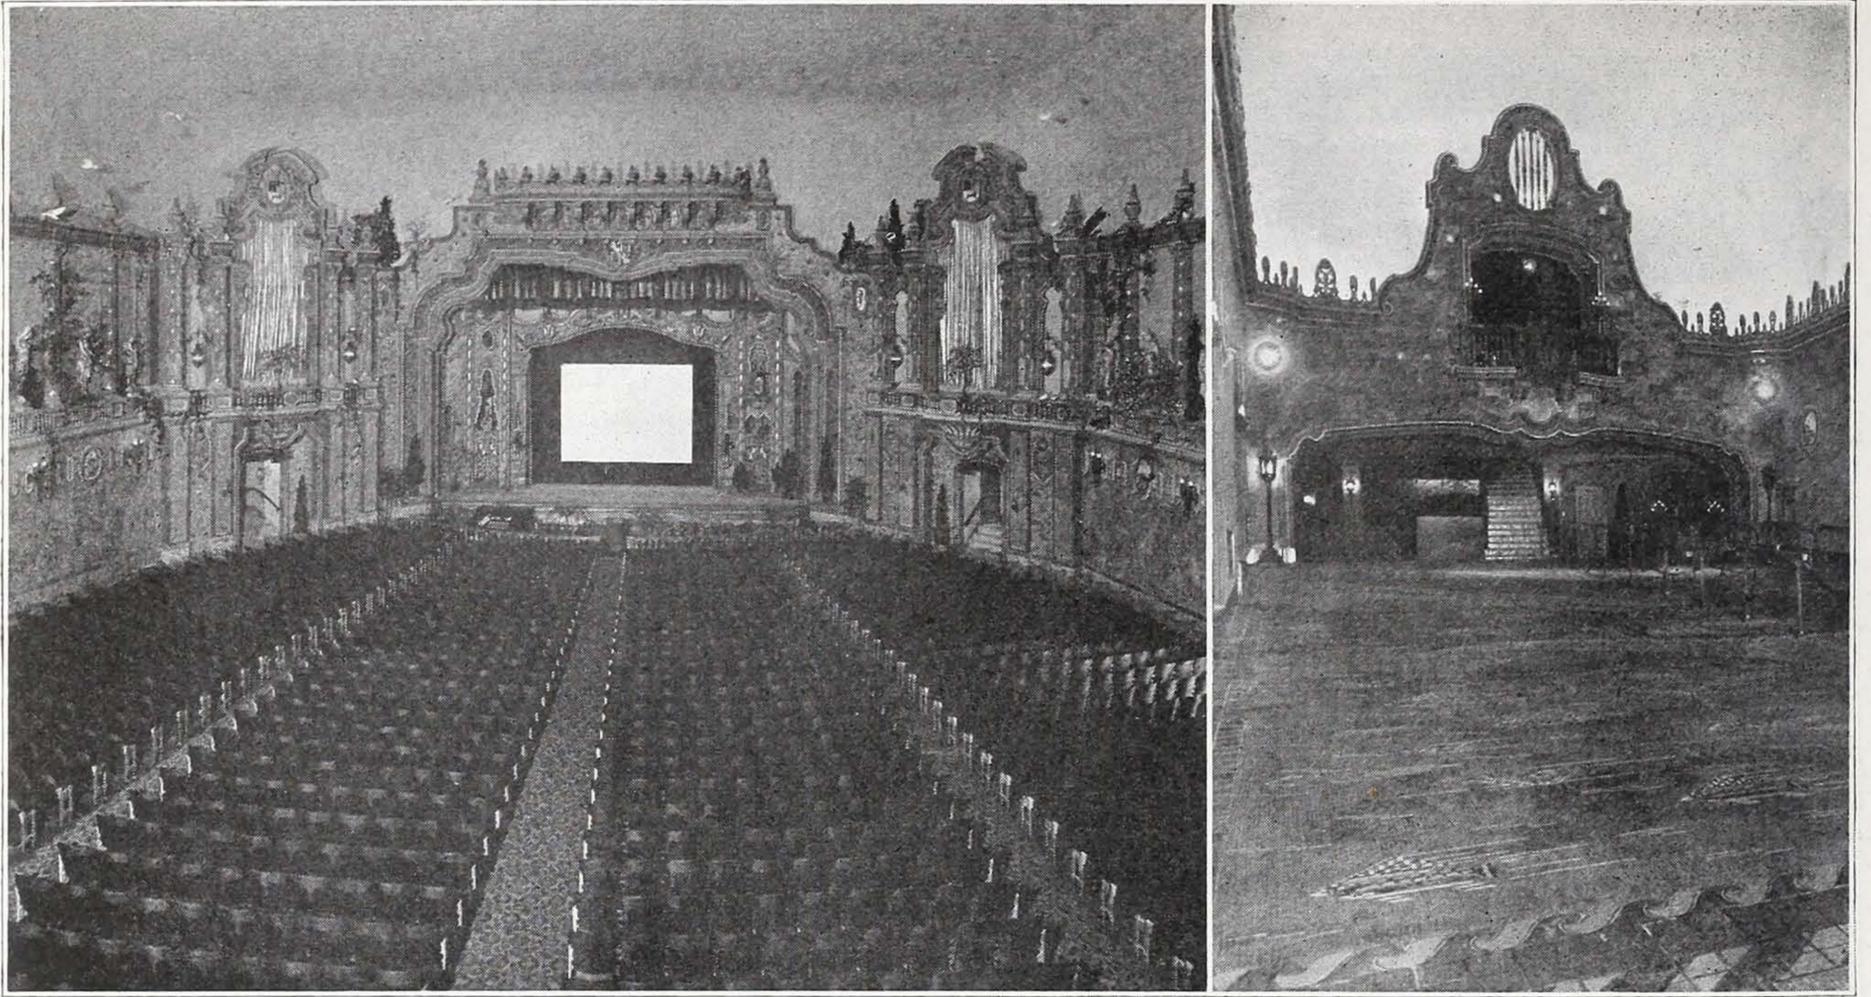

New Detroit Playhouse Opened in February by Charles W. Munz and Associates. The Annex Is an Atmospheric Theatre Designed by John Eber-son, Chicago Architect.

Left: Artistic arch located in promenade of Annex theatre. In Oval: Side wall decorations of a corner in the promenade. Below: Auditorium views showing open sky effect, flying doves and unusual stair- case giving effect of entering a castle.

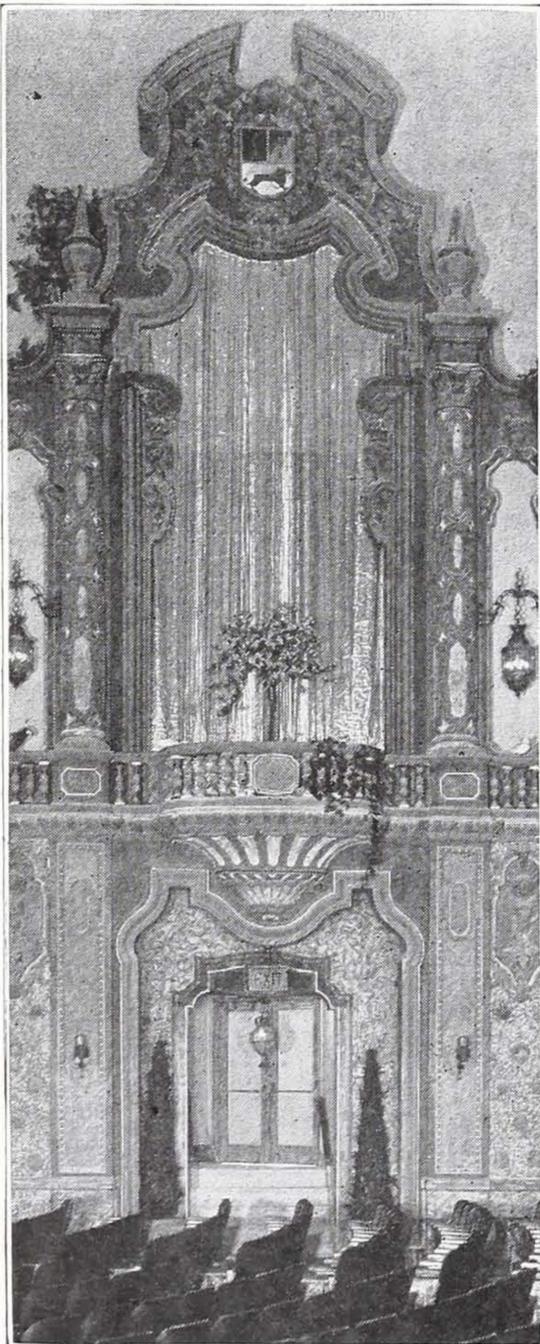

In Oval: Detail of stairway leading to castle effect at the rear of auditorium which houses sumptuous promenade.

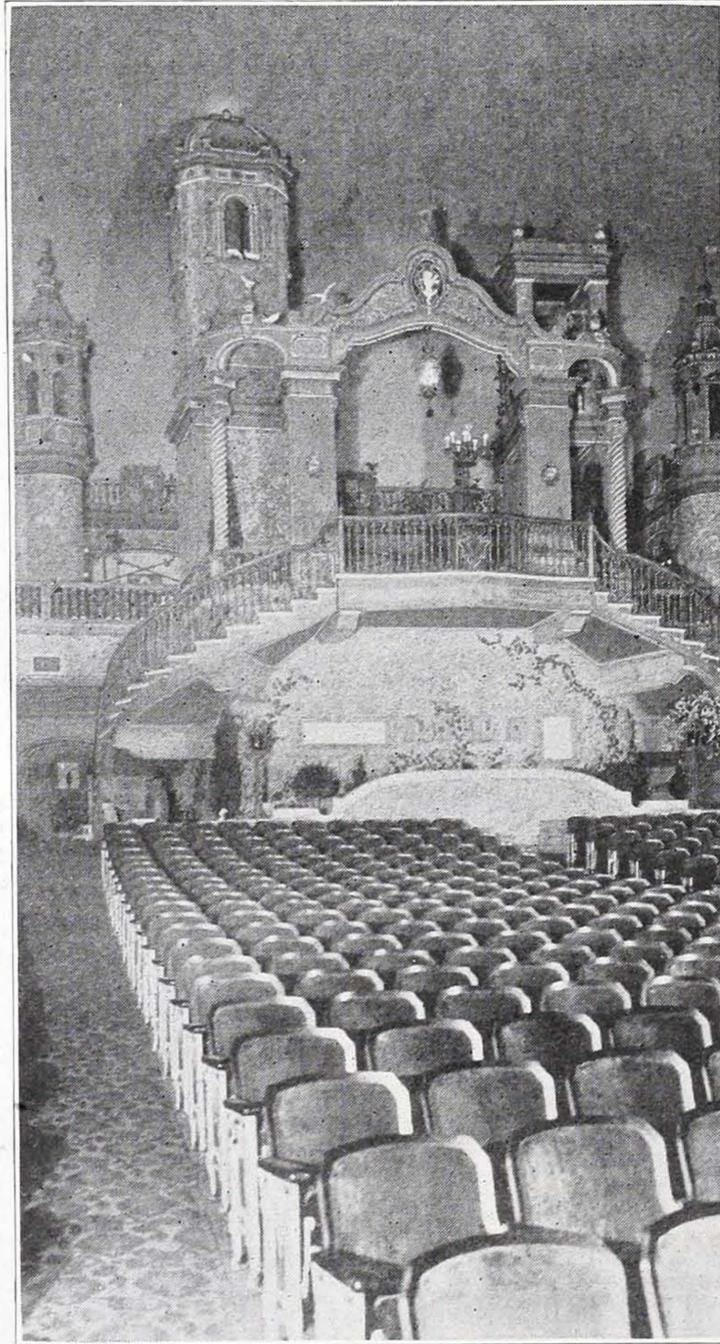

Right: The lobby of the Annex represents a grand court with open sky overhead.

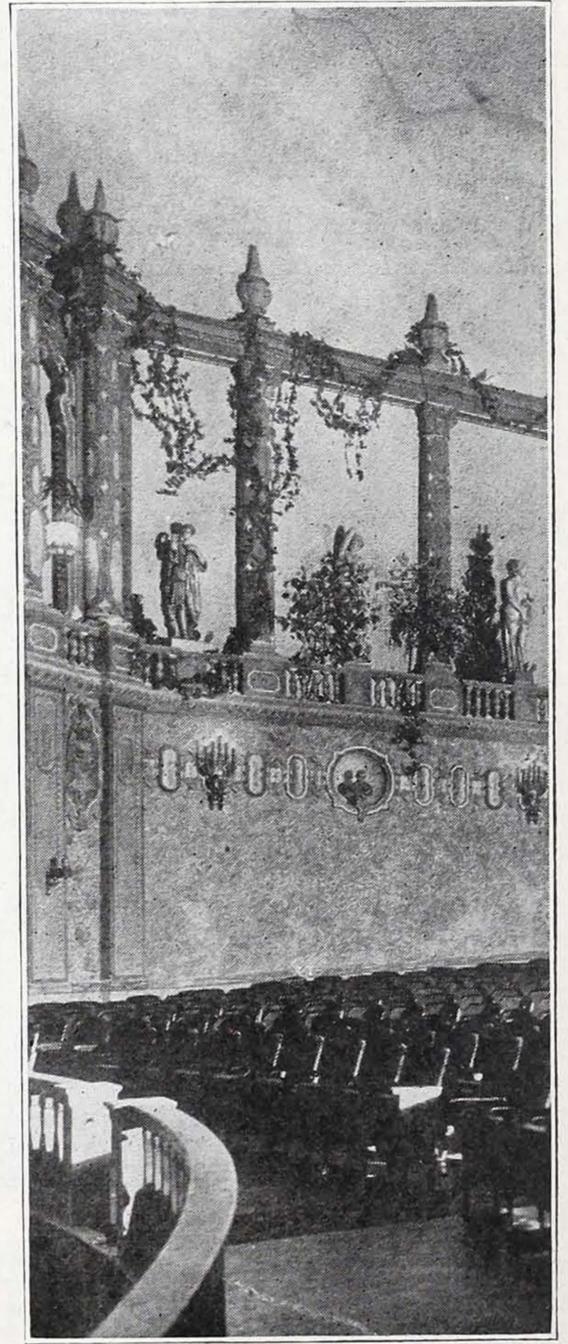

Left: Looking toward the stage of the Annex Theatre, Detroit, showing unusual treatment of proscenium and side walls. A view of the lobby which represents a grand court is shown to the right. The atmospheric treatment, originated by Architect Ebersson, has been cleverly carried out in all details of the Annex. Chas. W. Munz and associates are the owners.

Close-up of a portion of the proscenium and organ grill of the Annex theatre.

Underneath the novel staircase leading to the promenade is the projection room of the Annex theatre.

The side walls of the Annex are treated to represent the walls of a castle.