

Indiana Ballroom Comes Into Its Own As a Great Fun Palace

The Indiana ballroom, which was opened last night, has one of the finest equipped women's lounges of any amusement institution in the world. These rooms in fitting with the ballroom, are of Spanish architecture.

They are equipped with sixteen cosmetic shelves, eight electric hair dryers, eight electric curling irons, a huge cosmetic table and also a manicurists and attendant. This room is fitted with every modern known convenience.

The ballroom floor of this gigantic palace of dance cost more than $100,000 and you will find only a few duplicates of it in this country. It is rounding in shape, composed of small pieces of maple ends, encircling itself from the center of the ballroom to the edge of the promenade.

The Indiana ballroom has been equipped with two of the largest passenger elevators known. They will be operated by experienced operators conveying the patrons from the ground floor to the sixth floor of the Indiana Theater building.

This ballroom is also equipped with the finest checking facilities known. Two floors are devoted to the purpose of checking clothing. These two large check rooms will accommodate 4,000 persons. The checking system installed in these rooms.

The $50,000 refrigerating plant will provide for a complete change of every cubic foot of air every thirty seconds in the new ballroom.

Around a space of the promenade and the balcony terraces of the ballroom, tables are placed so that patrons desiring to partake of food or soft drinks may do so.

The Betsy Ross Luncheonette and Candy Company will operate this part of the ballroom.

Every modern convenience known has been placed in this ballroom of a thousand delights so that when you attend this palatial dance palace you will not receive anything but the finest in everything that is refined.

Monday night, with the exception of Monday evening, Sept. 6, and other holidays which fall or are celebrated on Monday, the Indiana ballroom will be available for private parties.

Tuesday evening, from 7:30 until 8:30 o'clock, dancing instructions will be given by the city's foremost instructors.

Wednesday night will be known as waltz night, when every other dance will be known as a beautiful waltz.

Thursday evening will be known as party night. On this evening special parties and novelties for the patrons of this ballroom will be arranged.

Friday night will be known as collegiate night, an evening for the college folks with a typical college atmosphere when the collegiates and the patrons will sing college songs and give college cheers and dance college steps; as well as an evening providing much mirth and laughter for every one attending.
