

Glendale Alexander

Week Ending July 3

Ted Mack and His Musical Monarchs, with Jack Kates and Bobby Agnew, popular screen juvenile, assisted by the "San Francisco Beauties," put over Fanchon and Marco's "College Caper's Idea" in great style. Each artist received a good hand for their offering.

The show opened with a collegiate atmosphere, the girls giving college yells, the orchestra playing school tunes, which was followed up by the Beauties doing a toe tap dance. Ted plays the saxophone through the chorus.

Jack Kates came next with a barrage of stories and wise cracks, which made a hit with the crowd. He finished singing "Coquette" with the aid of the girls, doing a comical dance as an exit. He was highly received and took an encore.

Bobby Agnew, who is rather stage shy, sang a special song regarding the cinema, ending up with "Back in Your Own Back Yard." His voice is good and his manner pleasing. He and the eight beauties in the finale danced and paraded to the orchestra's "Yale Blues," closing a short but delightful program and immensely entertaining.